WAVE OF PROHIBITION

Its Magnitude Causes Federal Government to Make Changes.

MAY GREATLY REDUCE REVENUES

If the Anti-Liquor Traffic Sentiment
Continues to Grow in the South, the National Government Will Lose Millions of Dollars Annually.

WASHINGTON, Oct. 17.—If you think there is nothing to the prohibition wave which is sweeping the South and Southwest, ask Capt. John G. Capers, commissioner of internal revenue, who has just returned from a trip through the South. As a result of this trip it is reported that the commissioner will consolidate several of the collection districts of the internal revenue service because of lack of business. The report has it that Georgia and South Carolina will be first consolidated and all the work placed under Michael Jenkins at Columbia, S. C., the Georgia office being abolished and the collector retired.

After January 1, Georgia will be dry, while half of the South Carolina counties still sell whiskey under the dispensary law. It is practically admitted that after January 1 there will be little or no need of a collector in Georgia. In the fiscal year 1906 the total collections of revenue in Georgia were $555,085. With these collections gone, the total collections probably will not exceed $50,000 a year.

Owing to local option, both Alabama and Florida practically have gone into the prohibition column, the latter being a little the wetter owing to a few recent minor prohibition defeats. Therefore, in case of a consolidation, which is in contemplation, the headquarters for the two states would be in Florida. Of course, the commissioner has no definite idea at this time as to just how much prohibition will affect the revenue of the nation. So long as the wave of prohibition is confined largely to the Southern states, where the distilleries are not of great proportions, it is not believed that the national income will be seriously affected. But when the wave reaches into the regions where revenue receipts amount to millions of dollars a year Uncle Samuel will begin to feel the pinch and be compelled to devise other means of taxation.

Only one thing will prevent the consolidation of Southern revenue districts the first of the year and that is the fact that such a move would necessitate the abolishment of the big salaried government machinery by which the Republicans have to control the Southern vote in the next national convention. Heretofore, the collection of internal revenue and their forces of men have been important factors in the selection of delegates to national conventions. Since Commissioner Capers himself is one of the administration leaders in Southern politics, he is expected not to act too hastily in the matter.

Oklahoma and Arkansas also are slated for consolidation on the ground that the new state is prohibition out and out while Arkansas is at least three-fourths dry. But Oklahoma Republicans don't like the idea of consolidation, having saved so small a remnant that they are catching at every straw in an effort to build up some sort of state machine. But there will be little or nothing for internal revenue collectors to do in Oklahoma and the expectation is that the consolidation will be made eventually.

HEAT STROKE ENDS LIFE.

Young Man, Stricken Last Summer,
Finally Dies From Effects.
FRELING, VA., Oct. 17.—Browning Baker, a young man near Clintwood, has just died under rather peculiar circumstances. Last June he became prostrated by heat. In which condition he remained several days, being unconscious part of the time. Then he apparently recovered but occasional symptoms of the trouble would return and soon disappear. He suffered periodic returns of the disorder until a night or two since, when the trouble manifested itself in a violent form, which resulted in his death.

The deceased was a brother of William H. P. Baker, former cashier of the Citizens' National Bank of Clintwood, and first cousin to R. D. Baker, county superintendent of Wise.

INVITED TO DISMAL SWAMP.

President Will Be Urged to Go Where Big Game Can Be Found.
SUFFOLK, VA., Oct. 17.—President Roosevelt will be invited to come to Suffolk and hunt bear in the Dismal Swamp. A number of prominent citizens have decided to ask the chief executive to come and have a sure enough hunt for bear and other big game with the promise that he will be shown more bears in one day than he has found in a week's travel in any other section of the South or East. Not only do bears abound in the fastness of the jungle, but there are many wild cats, wild boars and wild bulls, with plenty of deer and an occasional panther.

The local deer hunters have not returned empty-handed but once this season, and sometimes they bag two as was the case yesterday.

Was a Promise.

Policeman—That's your wife, and I heard her threaten to go home to her mother.

Old Boy—Why, my friend, I wouldn't consider that a threat.—Roseleaf.

WIRELESS SERVICE

ACROSS THE OCEAN

Minto, then Governor of Canada: "To His Majesty the King, London: 'May I be permitted by means of first wireless message to congratulate your Majesty on success of Marconi's great invention connecting England and Canada.' (Signed) 'MINTO.'"

On December 21st: "Oceano prim transmissioe radiotelegramma transatlantica invio con questo telegramma trasmesso attraverso lo spazio dal Nuovo al Vecchio Mondo devoti omaggi a Sua Maesta, il Re. 'GUGLIELMO MARCONI.'"

On December 22nd: "Times, London: 'Government Canada, through Times, desires congratulate British people accomplishment by Marconi's greatest feat modern science yet achieved.' (Signed) 'CARTWRIGHT, 'Acting Premier Ottawa.'"

The following replies were received by cable from Europe, as the Polden Station was not then equipped so as to transmit messages in a reliable manner from England to Canada: "From King Edward VII.

"Signor Marconi, Canada: 'I have had the honour of submitting your telegram to the King, and I am commanded to congratulate you sincerely for your endeavours to develop your most important invention. The King has been much interested by your experiments, as he remembers that the initial ones were commenced by you from the Royal Yacht Osborne in 1895.' (Signed) 'KNOLLYS.'"

Also the following from King Edward VII: "Marconi, from Governor General's Secretary.

"Am desired by Governor General to inform you that His Excellency had received following cable from his Majesty: 'I am much interested by the wireless message which you have sent me, and am delighted at the success of Signor Marconi's great invention which brings Great Britain and Canada into still closer connection.' (Signed) 'EDWARD R. L.'"

Also the following personal telegram from His Majesty the King of Italy: "Commeratore Marconi, Glace Bay, 'Table Head:

"Apprendo con vivissimo piacere grandi risultati ottenuti che costituiscono nuovo suo trionfo a maggior gloria della scienza Italiana. (Signed) 'VITTORIO EMANUELE.'"

Numerous other messages, aggregating several thousand words were afterwards sent from Cape Breton to England.

Mr. Marconi then proceeded to his other high power station, which had been erected at Cape Cod in Massachusetts, U. S. A., and early in January 1903, sent the following complete wireless telegram across to Polden in Cornwall, England, from the President of the United States to His Majesty the King of England:

"To His Majesty King Edward VII: 'In taking advantage of the wonderful triumph of scientific research and ingenuity which has been achieved in perfecting the system of wireless telegraphy, I extend on behalf of the American people my most cordial greetings and good wishes for you and the people of the British Empire.' (Signed) 'THEODORE ROOSEVELT.'"

The following is a copy of King Edward's reply sent (for reasons previously given) by cable: "To the President, White House, 'Washington:

"I thank you most sincerely for the kind message I have just received from you through Signor Marconi's transatlantic wireless telegraphy. I sincerely reciprocate in the name of the British Empire, the cordial greetings and friendly sentiments expressed by you on behalf of the American Nation, and I heartily wish you and your country every possible prosperity. (Signed) 'EDWARD R. L.'"

"Who Said Chicken?"
Posters with this inscription are on all the dead walls of Jersey City. At the recent session of the Senate committee that is investigating the affairs of the Hudson County Board of Freeholders it was shown that Mayor Fagan, who was mayor of the board of freeholders in 1897, gave to his friend Stephen Fitzgerald, now a police court clerk, but then a lineman for the New York and New Jersey Telephone Company, several orders for chickens and turkeys. The Democrats have made the chicken requisition incident a campaign slogan and it is affording considerable amusement. At a Fagan mass-meeting the other evening two chickens were let loose in the rear of the hall and their presence almost broke up the meeting.—New York World.

She (bored)—Why the delay?—Chips.

LAW DOES NOT REACH

Case of Men Charged With Sunday Work Are Dismissed.
LYNCHBURG, VA., Oct. 17.—The warrants against the ninety railroad laborers who were summoned before Squire Fortune, of Campbell county, ten days ago on the charge of laboring at their trade on Sunday, have been dismissed without trial by the magistrate.

The magistrate, after conferring with Commonwealth's Attorney William M. Merrill, and under a recent decision of the Supreme Court of Appeals of the State in the case of Wells vs. the Commonwealth, held that such a charge is not a misdemeanor, and therefore a criminal warrant would not lie in such a case, and that to enforce the statute it would be necessary to proceed under a civil warrant, render judgment and collect under an execution.

The result of the conference was that all of the ninety warrants were dismissed, and it is not known whether an effort will be made to prosecute the charges further.

AMBIGUOUS FAREWELL.

My Sophy read how ladies all,
Who wanted to ingratiate,
Would make their modish forms this fall
More sylphlike and emaciate.

And always keen for comme il faut's
Most transient profligacy,
She seized the idea with—Lord
Knows!—
Extravagant exuberance.

Hence, when I saw her next, I said:
"Ah, me! The saints palaver us!
Sophie—is it you? Why, blast my head!
How came you so cadaverous?"

She told me then how savor faire
Had made embonpoint second class,
And how she'd batted then and there
Into a higher-reckoned class.

Cried I: "Ah, what a thing to do!
Your weight's down to a decimal,
Your figure, from this profile view,
Is—Well, infinitesimal."

She said: "You like it, don't you dear?
Indeed, I felt quite sure of you!"
"Goodby," said I, and dropped a tear—
"I hope to see much more of you."
